PREFACE

As a member of De La Salle Philippines, De La Salle-College of Saint Benilde distinguishes itself from its sister units by way of the inclusive character of the institution, rooted in the recognition of the multidimensionality of human intelligence, and evidenced by the distinct manner by which it evaluates students admitted into the institution. Such inclusiveness has brought into the College a diverse population – students and faculty of various talents and capabilities.

The attribute of inclusiveness almost instantaneously demands a particular philosophical orientation that veers from the traditional educational philosophy. This orientation is simply defined as learner-centered. Unlike the traditional view that looks at the student as a mere receptacle of the knowledge handed down by an all-knowing teacher, a learner-centered educational philosophy recognizes that the student is intrinsically motivated to learn and should therefore be actively engaged in the process of learning. To realize this, the teacher plays the role of a facilitator: guiding the student in employing the relevant strategies for learning, and coming to terms with the student in consensually defining learning outcomes and the ways by which the fulfillment of such objectives can be monitored and evaluated.

While the orientation may sound simple, the pursuit of greater learner-centeredness is undeniably challenging. It requires every member of the College to be continually conscious of how each contributes to setting up an environment that is conducive to learning. The task also demands from the College the establishment of institutional arrangements that would enable its key human resources—the academic faculty—to carry out their tasks. In this pursuit, the College must endeavor to assist the academic faculty in gaining an understanding of their functions, becoming motivated in fulfilling these, and obtaining the support necessary to facilitate their own professional growth.

This Faculty Manual endeavors to fulfill the objectives set forth above. As a product of discussions among representatives of the DLS-CSB administration and the academic faculty, this document encapsulates the commitment of the sectors concerned to progressively fulfill their roles as facilitators of learning and as stewards of the holistic formation of our most valuable constituents: the students.
ST. JOHN BAPTIST DE LA SALLE (1651-1719)

John Baptist de La Salle was born into a world very different from our own. He was the first son of wealthy parents living in France over 300 years ago. Born at Reims, John Baptist de La Salle received the tonsure at age eleven and was named Canon of the Reims Cathedral at sixteen. Though he had to assume the administration of family affairs after his parents died, he completed his theological studies and was ordained a priest on April 9, 1678. Two years later, he received a doctorate in theology. Meanwhile, he became tentatively involved with a group of rough and barely literate young men in order to establish schools for poor boys.

At that time, a few people lived in luxury; most of the people were extremely poor: peasants in the country and slum dwellers in the towns. Only a few could send their children to school; most children had little hope for the future. Moved by the plight of the poor who seemed so "far from salvation" either in this world or the next, he determined to put his own talents and advanced education at the service of the children "often left to themselves and badly brought up." To be more effective, he abandoned his family home, moved in with the teachers, renounced his position as Canon and his wealth, and so formed the community that became known as the Brothers of the Christian Schools.

His enterprise met opposition from the ecclesiastical authorities who resisted the creation of a new form of religious life, a community of consecrated laymen to conduct gratuitous schools "together and by association." The educational establishment resented his innovative methods and his insistence on gratuity for all, regardless of whether they could afford to pay. Nevertheless, De La Salle and his Brothers succeeded in creating a network of quality schools throughout France that featured instruction in the vernacular, students grouped according to ability and achievement, integration of religious instruction with secular subjects, well-prepared teachers with a sense of vocation and mission, and the involvement of parents. In addition, De La Salle pioneered in programs for training lay teachers, Sunday courses for working young men, and one of the first institutions in France for the care of delinquents. Worn out by austerities and exhausting labors, he died at Saint Yon near Rouen early in 1719 on Good Friday, only weeks before his sixty-eighth birthday.

John Baptist de La Salle was a pioneer in founding training colleges for teachers, reform schools for delinquents, technical schools, and secondary schools for modern languages, arts, and sciences. His work quickly spread through France and, after his death, continued to spread across the globe. In 1900, John Baptist de La Salle was declared a Saint. In 1950, because of his life and inspirational writings, he was made Patron Saint of all those who work in the field of education. John Baptist de La Salle inspired others how to teach and care for young people; how to meet failure and frailty with compassion; how to affirm, strengthen and heal. At the present time there are De La Salle schools in at least 80 different countries around the globe.

DE LA SALLE PHILIPPINES

Preamble

Deeply moved, as St. John Baptist de La Salle was, by the plight of the poor and youth at risk, we, the members of the Lasallian schools in the Philippines, commit ourselves to the Lasallian Mission of providing a human and Christian education to the young, especially in schools, with the service of the poor as priority, in order to evangelize and catechize, to promote peace, justice, and integrity of creation, accomplishing these together in association. We draw strength from the many Lasallians committed to incarnating our charism in our country today to serve the needs of Filipino youth, especially those at risk.

Declaration

Inflamed by the Holy Spirit, God’s own Fire, we declare our commitment to the following:

- We shall work together as a national network of Lasallian schools in the Philippines for the efficient and effective implementation of the Lasallian Mission, following the directives of the De La Salle Brothers and the Philippine Lasallian Family as set by the General Chapter, the District Chapter and the Philippine Lasallian Family Convocation.
- We shall ensure the integrity of the Lasallian Mission by setting directions and standards applicable to Philippine Lasallian schools and by monitoring their implementation.
- We shall promote the Lasallian Mission by fostering synergy, collaboration and sharing among the Lasallian schools.
- We shall uphold the Lasallian values of faith, zeal for service and communion in mission.

Prayer

In all these, we, together and by association, dedicate our life and work to God, Who alone guarantees the fulfillment of our Lasallian dream.
ST. BENILDE ROMANÇON (1805-1862)

Pierre Romançon was born to a poor peasant family in the village of Thuret in south-central France. He was so far ahead of his classmates in elementary school that, when he was only fourteen years old, the Brothers engaged him as a substitute teacher. He felt a strong desire to be a Lasallian Brother and despite the objection of his parents and the reluctance of the superiors, who thought he was too short of stature, he was admitted to the novitiate and assumed the name Benilde.

He loved teaching children and spent 40 years in the classroom. From 1821 to 1841, he taught successfully in the network of elementary schools conducted by the Brothers out of the administrative center at Clermont-Ferrand. In 1841, he was appointed Director of a school that was opening in Saugues, an isolated village on a barren plateau in southern France. For the next twenty years, he worked quietly and effectively as teacher and principal to educate the boys in the village and some from the neighboring farms, many of whom were in their teens and had never been to school before. In time, the little school became the center of the social and intellectual life of the village, with evening classes for the adults and tutoring for the less gifted students.

Brother Benilde’s extraordinary religious sense was evident to everyone: at Mass with the students in the parish church, teaching catechism, preparing boys for first communion, visiting and praying with the sick, and rumors of near-miraculous cures. In his desire to allow a deaf boy to take his first Holy Communion, he endeavored to learn sign-language so that the boy can be taught catechism and be allowed to be a true Christian.

He was especially effective in attracting religious vocations. At his death, more than 200 Brothers and an impressive number of priests had been his students at Saugues.

In 1928, Benilde Romançon was declared a Saint. At his beatification, Pope Pius XI said, “Sanctity does not consist in doing extraordinary things, but in doing ordinary things extraordinarily well.” His deep faith and zeal encouraged many young men to the priesthood and religious life, and he became known as the patron saint of vocations.

LEARNER-CENTERED EDUCATION AT DE LA SALLE-COLLEGE OF SAINT BENILDE

Lasallian education is geared towards the integral human and Christian development of diverse types of learners, and prepares them for responsible participation in the world of work, the family, the community, the wider society, and the local Church. It stresses the importance of synergy, collaboration, and dialogue; and encourages critical and creative thinking, self-knowledge and self-mastery. The learning environment is founded on the belief that each learner is uniquely endowed with God-given talents and gifts that need to be understood, appreciated, and nurtured. As a Lasallian school, the De La Salle-College of Saint Benilde espouses and promotes a culture that puts the learners at its core.

A learner-centered school is committed to seeking answers to the following questions: “What is best for learners? How will learning be most effectively facilitated?” Learner-centered education operates according to what is known about individual learners (their heredity, experiences, perspectives, backgrounds, talents, interests, capacities, and needs) and the learning process (the best available knowledge about learning and how it occurs, including effective teaching practices that promote the highest levels of motivation, learning, and achievement for all learners); and applying this knowledge to improve practice.

In a learner-centered school, education is both a shared mission and a collaborative effort among students, faculty, staff, administrators, alumni, and parents. There is a deep-seated respect for each and every member of this learning community. College students are certainly learners. Faculty are learners, too, as they inquire into the content of their disciplines, and as they develop their instructional, technical, and research skills. Administrators are learners as they enhance their leadership abilities, spearhead curricular directions, and ensure a conducive learning environment. Staff are learners as they seek ways to do their jobs more effectively and efficiently, and as they advance their knowledge through continuing education and training. Alumni are learners as they build on the foundation established in their college education and as they continually develop their expertise. Parents are learners as they engage with the College community in promoting the best interest of the students.

As a Lasallian learner-centered institution, we accompany students in their journeys of faith development and personal transformation, and share with them meaningful learning encounters that will enable them to become among others, creative thinkers, competent professionals and socially responsible citizens. We believe that this kind of educational experience will lead to more sustained and more powerful learning from which students can draw insights and lessons beyond their formal education.

It is our strong belief that in order to optimize learning and effect positive learning outcomes, classes, services, and other relevant activities must reflect the goals of the College. To this end, we are committed to creating learning environments and experiences that allow students to discover and construct knowledge for themselves, with as many options for learning as possible; and providing quality teaching through a pool of faculty who are adequately trained in facilitating learner-centered instruction.

To guide us in our pursuit of this vision, the DLS-CSB adheres to the following principles about learners, the learning process, and the learning environment:

To be learner-centered means to learn continuously. A learner has a willful desire to continuously improve and shows an enduring interest to learn. He believes that learning is a lifelong endeavor.

To be learner-centered means to evaluate learning experiences. Reflection and evaluation of learning experiences engender further learning.

To be learner-centered means to advance synergy and collaboration. A learner knows that learning is a shared mission.

To be learner-centered means to respect diversity. A learning environment is supportive if it treats its members equitably and recognizes each individual’s unique gifts.

To be learner-centered means to nurture relationships. Sound and positive relationships promote successful attainment of learning goals.
